TEAM NOTES:

- Orford & Williams began skating together in May 2010.
- Orford previously skated with Malcolm Rohon-O'Halloran, finishing seventh at 2010 Skate Canada Junior Nationals.
- Williams had several partners before Orford, including Olga Lioudvinevitch and Alicia Williams.
- Williams had decided to take a year off from skating after his partnership with Lioudvinevitch ended in 2010. He had moved back home to Alberta when Orford contacted him for a tryout. When that was successful, he had to make a quick decision to move to Vancouver to skate with her. They medaled at their first JGP event, just four months later.
- When leaving Russia after 2012 Rostelecom Cup, Orford & Williams were forced to abandon their skates at airport security. They had carried their skates on the plane on the way to Russia, but were stopped on the way home. They were not allowed to return to ticketing to check their skates, as they had already cleared customs. Their skates were mailed to them, but they did not arrive before the team had to leave for NHK Trophy a week later, so they competed in Japan wearing old skates. Williams's boots were held together with duct tape. They skated well and finished fourth.

- Servant previously skated with Joanna Salvagna and trained in Scarborough, ON.
- Since Poulin & Servant won the 2012 Canadian junior title, they had to move up to the senior level domestically. However, they continued to skate at the junior level internationally, so they have had the difficult task of preparing two completely different short dances this season.
- Poulin & Servant broke the Canadian junior record (SD+FD format) at the 2012 Canadian Championships and held it for just over a month, when it was reclaimed by Nicole Orford & Thomas Williams at the 2012 World Junior Championships.

TEAM NOTES:

- Virtue & Moir began skating together in October 1997, making them the longest-running competitive partnership in Canada.
- Virtue & Moir are the first Canadian ice dancers to win the Olympic title and the second to win the World title.
- They have national titles at every level except novice, and they are the only Canadian dance team to have won national titles at four of the five levels.
- They hold Canadian records for total score in senior dance (both the CD+OD+FD and SD+FD formats) and junior dance (CD+OD+FD format).
- Virtue underwent surgery on her legs in fall 2008 and fall 2010. Both operations were done to relieve pressure caused by chronic exertional compartment syndrome. During the season after the second surgery, she changed her stroking pattern in order to prevent another relapse.
- Virtue is a student at the University of Windsor.
- Moir's family is heavily involved in skating. His older brothers, Charlie and Danny, both skated, as did his cousins. His aunt, Carol Moir, was his and Tessa's first dance coach.
